Twenty-first century cities are faced with environmental challenges and increasing demand to enhance user experiences in their urban landscape. This lecture series presents leaders in the fields of architecture, design and computer science who are in the forefront of new technologies and infrastructure.
April 23 at 7:30pm
RISD Auditorium

Twenty-first century cities are faced with environmental challenges and increasing demand to enhance user experiences in their urban landscape. This lecture series presents leaders in the fields of architecture, design and computer science who are in the forefront of new technologies and infrastructure.

April 23 at 7:30pm
RISD Auditorium

Twenty-first century cities are faced with environmental challenges and increasing demand to enhance user experiences in their urban landscape. This lecture series presents leaders in the fields of architecture, design and computer science who are in the forefront of new technologies and infrastructure.
April 23 at 7:30pm
RISD Auditorium

Twenty-first century cities are faced with environmental challenges and increasing demand to enhance user experiences in their urban landscape. This lecture series presents leaders in the fields of architecture, design and computer science who are in the forefront of new technologies and infrastructure.

April 23 at 7:30pm
RISD Auditorium